Welcome to China! I'm so excited to share with you a special Chinese handicraft — paper cutting.

Paper cutting is a traditional Chinese folk art that has been around for over 1,500 years. When making paper cuts, people turn simple pieces of paper into beautiful designs. The paper, usually red, is folded before it is cut with scissors. The most common shapes are flowers, animals, and characters from Chinese folk stories. During the Spring Festival, beautiful paper cuts are put on windows, doors and walls as symbols of wishes for good luck and a happy new year.

I recommend paper cutting because it not only shows the creativity of Chinese people but also carries deep cultural meaning. It reflects the values, beliefs and customs of Chinese people. Also, it is fun and relaxing for anyone to try.

Hope you'll enjoy yourselves here.

As the Internet has become part of our lives, it's important to be a good teen netizen. For one thing, being a good netizen benefits ourselves because it helps us to win acceptance and respect from others. For another, if everyone behaves properly online, we can help to build a safer and more positive online community.

To be a good teen netizen, here are some useful tips. First, we need to communicate in a polite way. It helps everyone feel good and respected. Second, we'd better be careful about the personal information we share online. If it ends up in the hands of the wrong people, we could face unexpected problems. Finally, we should use the Internet to our benefit, for education and self-improvement, not just to kill time.

I believe that by working together, each one of us can contribute to building a positive and responsible online community, while enjoying the benefits of the Internet.
